

ABSTRACT

A maraca is formed with a handle having a bottle opener therein. A group transverse groove is provided in the handle which has a bottom surface, a first side surface, and second side surface. A metal tool is mounted in the handle to extend along the first side surface, and to extend from the first side surface toward the second side surface.